A STAB IN THE DARK

The United Welfare Association seems to be a unit on the protection of the Negro. It also assumes the methods of a secret political organization after the order of the Ku Klux Klan.

In a closing paragraph of an address it issues to the people, urging them to vote for segregation, it suggests secrecy as a protection for its voters and says, "You need not become publicly identified with us; just drop the enclosed postal in the mail box to assure us that you are with us." That means "I still hunt" on the part of the United Welfare Association. It means to secretly stab the Negro. It is civic humiliation. It suggests a method to escape from responsibility for the men who join in this fight for the humiliation of the Negro. It would be a good thing to get a complete list of subscribers to the petition invoking the initiative to be used in the segregation of the Negro and publish it, and then you might see 17,000 or 18,000 men walking through the streets of St. Louis with shamed faces.

Any cause must be either wrong or weak that cannot be boldly advocated by all its followers.

RELIGIOUS INTOLERANCE AND RACE HATE

In the opposition to the appointment of Louis D. Brandeis for the Supreme Bench you can see something of the course of religious intolerance and race hate that lie like a nightmare upon the progressive and aspirations of the American people. "A Jewish Journal (The Modern View) calls this opposition 'quite satanic'.

If to oppose a man on account of religion is satanic, how will you class a man's opposition to another on account of his color, a circumstance over which he has neither choice nor control?

Diarsid, the Jew, became the premier of England, after a struggle that lasted many years, and, admittedly, he was one of the ablest statesmen of his day in England.

What a terrible fomentation in America would have taken place if the President had appointed a Negro as member of the Supreme Bench or upon the bench of the Federal Appellate Court. The cyclone of St. Louis in 1896 would have been a gentle zephyr to it.

A "Southern Gentle Democrat" sent a telegram to Washington against Brandeis' appointment, simply because he is a Jew. This anonymous defamer is much like our St. Louis segregationists; he hides himself, but his name ought to be dragged out into the light, so that the people would know him and mark him as an enemy of mankind.

ENCOURAGING RACE PREJUDICE

(Editorial, Cape Girardeau, Mo., Daily Tribune, Jan. 29, 1916.)

Agitators in St. Louis are making an effort to segregate the colored population of that city. A committee, composed of some of the most influential men in St. Louis, have announced that they will oppose the movement.

A proposal to isolate the Negro would have created little surprise before 1861, but it cannot meet with approval in the enlightened era of today. It is unjust movements of this character that keep race hatred alive. They do neither the whites nor the blacks any good.

The Negro is a part of the United States. He has shouldered his rifle at the call of his country, and he will do so again if the occasion arises. In this persecuted race there are good as well as bad. The bad are, and should be, punished, but those who strive to make good citizens should not be constantly harassed.

The segregation movement in St. Louis will, and should, of course, fail, but the feeling that it engenders will require years to erase. If the whites were to lend a helping hand instead of to persistently abuse and offend, the Negroes who violate laws would rapidly decrease.

Abraham Lincoln, undoubtedly the greatest American, either living or dead, argued against slavery. What he said in opposition to slavery is an argument against segregation. The following passages were taken from Lincoln's speeches:

"No man is good enough to govern another man without that other's consent."

"When the white man governs himself that is self-government, but when he governs himself and also governs another man that is more than self-government—that is despotism."

"This government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free."

"I have always thought that all men should be free, but if it should be, first, those who desire it for themselves, and, secondly, those who desire it for others."

"Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us dare to do our duty as we understand it."

"Public sentiment is everything. With public sentiment nothing can fail; without it nothing can succeed. Consequently, he who molds public sentiment goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions. He makes statutes and decisions possible or impossible to be executed."

"Our fathers brought forth a nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

Anti-Segregation Notes

One of the most encouraging things that has happened recently in the formation of an auxiliary committee to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, among the prominent white people. Our president, Mr. Osmayon Tankersley, Rev. John W. Day, and Mr. Roger Baldwin have been making an effort for some time to bring this about. Some of the members are Mr. Frank Cranden, president of City Club, chairman, Messrs. Baldwin, E. Smith, Percy Werner, Solider, E. Spence, H. H. Chaumont, Carl Gaylor and the before mentioned members of our branch. They are hoping to increase the membership of the committee to one hundred.

The Local Branch of the N. A. A. C. feels deeply grateful in the fact that Judge Canfield has associated himself with Messrs. Vaughn and Phillips as leading attorney in appealing the case against the validity of the initiative law to the supreme court of the state.

Following is a letter from Atty. Wm. Ashbie Hawkins, of Baltimore, Md. Read and be convinced.

Baltimore, Md. January 29, 1916.

Miss Kathryn M. Johnson,
3137 Pine St.,
St. Louis, Mo.

My Dear Miss Johnson:

I have your favor of the 26th last, inquiring about the effect of our segregation law on real estate in this city and I beg to say in reply herewith my brief opinion thereon.

The Baltimore Segregation Law has effectively put a stop to the purchase of property by Negroes in any other section of the city than in those where Negroes lived or owned homes prior to its enactment. In the blocks wholly "colored" or "mixed" (and the latter white block, but the only entrance in the law), it has had the effect of creating an unusual demand, with a consequent increase in price, either for rent or purchase. In such blocks it is of the rarest occurrence to see a vacant house, whereas in the contiguous "white" blocks, numberless houses stand idle and unrented, because solicited people under the law, are prohibited from occupying them, and white people will not rent or buy them. It has created a fictitious valuation on the property in the "colored" or "mixed" blocks to the temporary advantage of the property holders in those sections, and it has lessened values in the contiguous "white" blocks, to the great loss, financially, of the owners of property therein.

Rentals for Negroes have increased in some instances as much as fifty per cent, and for this reason, the law is working a hardship on many of those who are the least able to stand it. While owners are pocketing losses all over town in such blocks as I have mentioned.

The test case now awaiting decision by our court of appeals arose over a corner house, the front of which is in a white block, but the rear portion, which is on the side and in a block wholly colored. The house was numbered on the street fronting it. The house stood idle for some time because no white person would rent it, operating as it does in a colored block, and for a long time, no colored man cared to risk arrest by moving into it, facing as it does, a white block. Plans for the future were brought to buy, it paid a small deposit on account, moved in, and then was arrested for violating the law. He gave bond, moved in the house for eight months, was unable to perfect a lease, because of the persistent activity of his white neighbors in preventing his securing a needed mortgage loan. He was forced to leave the house, and was left a white widow, was unable to stand further losses.

He does not hold title to the realty market in this city.

I wish you success in your movement. Yours very truly,
(Signed) W. Ashbie Hawkins.

St. Louis, Mo.
Dear Sir and Friend:

I received your clipping of an advertisement in the Post-Dispatch, a paper of your city, upon segregation, and I thank you for the same. I am delighted at the tone of the Post-Dispatch upon the latter. Nothing in the world will cause the integration of our day and ruin our country, except it be prohibition, such as the kind referred to and brought about by segregation laws such as you are in vote on in your city February 29.

People who think themselves better than their fellows, always succeed in doing mischief. The kind of sympathy of their fellow, and it is in this kind of conduct that comes the decay of nations. A neighbor who feels that he is better than you, will not be called promptly by you when he is in an fire, or being disabled by illness at night, and you should be running on a larger scale of prejudice. In case you are in sympathy with the foreign forces they will give assistance and never much credit to the country abroad than to the enemy at home. To be a despotic people, this is a temptation, and I should be to think what harm and ruin it would entail upon the identity of the Caucasian race, if all of the brown-skinned ones, when they are in control, would cause and enforce laws such as you are to vote on in your city. However, the same brown race will not say recent times have and persecutions, and, like the Mississippi, will overflow the course of its levee dikes and spread ruin and destruction to those who live in the course of its path and natural route. The rights of a man, like the rights of nature, are natural, and cannot successfully be alienated permanently. Let St. Louis and Missouri beware.

Yours very respectfully,

Atlanta, Ga.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of Standard Life Insurance Company held in the city January 29, 1916, J. C. Smith, of Tennessee Insurance, was elected a director to succeed the late Mr. C. B. Smith. The year's work was very successful in every particular and the stockholders were much pleased at the report of the management. It was voted to increase the capital from $100,000 to $125,000 in order to enable the company to move rapidly against the work and to purchase the business of other companies retiring from the field. Every dollar of the company's capital is owned by colored people. The 250 shares increase will be placed on the market at an early date. The company has begun making loans from the state where it operates and will do likewise in the states it is to enter soon. The total assets of the company are $100,000.00. This company has two million dollars insurance in force, with favorable reserves amounting to $1,750,000.00. The total income for the year was $75,000.00, out of which the company made $25,000.00. It has paid to policyholders, since organization, $20,000.00, and in colored policies, for applying annuities, $10,000.00. It operates in seven states, maintains twelve branch offices and employs over one hundred people. It plans to build a new building in the city for the year 1917. A recent announcement by the insurance department, as of December 31, 1915, showed the company to be in excellent condition.

A week of high class vaudeville is the current Booker Washington Theater offering. The program is pleasing, crowded, amusing, night. Sam Green Byrd, a prima donna soprano, is rendering three excellent numbers in most approved fashion. Johnson and Baylor in a song and dance act are pleasing, sassy. The four Cyrling Comiques, a white quartet of acrobatic funsters keep the audience in an uproar throughout their appearance. They seem to ride everything that can roll. Fred Rogers, an eccentric buck and wing dancer, with a string of humorous jokes, closes the show in a storm of applause. The show is up to the average of vaudeville bills and is being highly praised.
